ABSTRACT:

A display device (panel) is made recognizable by an application (11) in an electronic apparatus. This enables the application to use otherwise dummy lines (L1... L22) during start up to be used to program configuration parameters (parameters like display length and width, TFT-driving parameters like pulse widths etc.)

5

Fig. 4A